Set within a private gated community on Marbella’s Golden Mile, this villa occupies a generous south-facing plot. Light moves through the house from morning to evening, and both floors open onto wide views of the Mediterranean.

Its architecture is clean and composed: a white façade, symmetrical lines, and planting that softens every edge. At the top of the house, a roof terrace looks out over the sea and towards La Concha.

Outside, the terraces, private pool and carefully landscaped garden form a natural extension of the living spaces. They are equally suited to quiet mornings and to evenings with guests.

Inside, the atmosphere is calm and contemporary. The open living area is defined by soft, indirect lighting and a warm neutral palette. The dining area flows into the kitchen and lounge, so the space works as well for daily life as for entertaining. An integrated sound system carries music through the house and out onto the terraces.

The kitchen is generous and well considered, with ample storage, wide worktops and an informal breakfast corner….
